RE: Nunhems Good Agricultural Practices

To Whom It May Concern:

Nunhems is an industry leader that supplies quality seed by following proper agricultural practices. This is done by accurate internal record keeping of crop productions, constant monitoring of disease/insect pressures, documenting and advising best practices completed by our producers.

Nunhems has set standards that we adhere to for all crops. The Quality Assurance Department continually monitors our production fields and tests all lots prior to being sold.

The product that is supplied has been inspected and sampled by various state Departments of Agriculture and at times tested by third party labs. Nunhems performs internal tests and inspects to ensure products meet quality standards, as well as application of seed treatment products in accordance with the manufacturer's label.

We are committed to these set standards and are always reviewing in order to improve our production / supply practices.
